❖ Commentary

We are not certain of the meaning of devamārga here. MONIER-WILLIAMS (s.v. 1899) says it means the sky but one would expect it to have a more specific astrological meaning in a list of stars and planets. It could be a synonym for devapatha, which can mean the Milky Way according to one lexicographical source (Trikāṇḍaśeṣa 1.1.97). The reference in the Viṣṇudharmottarapurāṇa (see the Testimonia) suggests it is a celestial object that shines.

Arundhati is mentioned in the Bṛhatsaṃhitā (13.6) and is said to be close to Vasiṣṭha (tatra vasiṣṭhaṃ munivaram upāśritārundhatī sādhvī). Vasiṣṭha and Arundhati are the double star, Mizar and Alcor in the saptarṣi nakṣatra (Ursa Major). See RAO 2019: 53.

❖ Commentary

In the version of this verse transmitted in the Haṭhapradīpikā, the relative pronoun yaḥ requires a verb in the first hemistich, as seen in the Yogacintāmaṇi, whose verse is a close parallel to the one in question, hence our emendation of vātyām to vamen (cf. Yogacintāmaṇi).

The idea behind this verse is clearly expressed in the Dharmaputrikā, where the yogi whose urine and faeces become gold and silver, in reality or in sleep, has eight months left to live.

❖ Commentary

It seems more likely that mārutaḥ here refers to the breath rather than external wind, since it is difficult to conceive how wind could cut the vital points, which are located inside the body. In his commentary on Chāndogyopaniṣat 6.8.6, Śaṅkara describes an internal process in which the breath cuts vital points as a person dies, with the breath merging into heat, which in turn merges into the highest deity (prāṇas ca tadordhvocchvāsī svātmany upasamhṛtabāhyakaraṇaḥ saṃvargavidyāyām darśanād dhastapādādīn vikṣipan marmasthānāni nikṛntann ivotsrjan krameṇopasaṃhṛtas tejasi sampadyate [...]). Similarly, the first half of a parallel verse in the Dharmaputrikā (213) appears to be describing an internal process in which the breath is disturbed and then escapes from the vital points.

The original version of the first line was probably that of the Skandapurāṇa, where the verse conveys the idea of a waterless river filled with hair, charcoal, ash or snakes. tyuḥ appears as the subject, whereas the subject should be a man (naraḥ), as found in the Mārkaṇḍeyapurāṇa (40.20) and Śārṅgadharapaddhati (4585). It makes little sense for death to be struck by stones etc., so the reading of the Śārṅgadharapaddhati's final pāda has been adopted.

We have understood gaṇḍe vā piṇḍikā as the fleshy region on the cheek in line with Mitākṣarā's gloss on Yājñavalkyasmṛti 3.97cd (piṇḍikā māṁsalapradeśaḥ). The original idea appears to be expressed in the Dharmaputrikā, where the cheeks turn yellow and red (gaṇḍau tu pītakau raktau), and the introduction of the word piṇḍikā has caused confusion.

❖ Commentary

This verse does not appear outside the Haṭhāpradīpikā's transmission, yet the notion of the tongue becoming thick seems to be an old omen (see e.g. the Tantrasadbhava parallel). Also, the timeframe is not consistent with the verses that precede and follow it.

The syntax of the transmitted reading for the fourth pāda (mṛtyur bhaven nṛṇām) does not make sense, so the reading of the Mārkaṇḍeyapurāṇa has been adopted. A similar idea is expressed in verse 15.

❖ Commentary

We have adopted the readings viparītatvaṃ and viparyayaḥ in keeping with the parallel verse in the Mārkaṇḍeyapurāṇa. Both viparītaṃ and viparyayam in the Haṭhāpradīpikā witnesses are adjectives without an implied noun. It also seems more probable that viparītaṃ ca is a corruption of viparītatvaṃ than vaiparītyaṃ tu.

❖ Commentary

In Haṭhapradīpikā 10.21, Bālakṛṣṇa glosses layasthānaṃ ("the place of dissolution") with brah-

बद्धसिद्धासनो देहं पूरयेत्प्राणवायुना ।

Having adopted the adept's pose (siddhāsana), [the yogi] should fill the body with an inhalation. Carefully keeping his spine steady, he should close the ten apertures [of his body]. (57)

बन्धयेत्खेचरीमुद्रां ग्रीवायां च जलन्धरम् ।

He should apply khecarīmudrā, and the jālandhara [lock] on the neck; and the root lock on [the region] of apāna, and the uḍḍīyāṇa [lock] on the abdomen. (58)

57c daṇḍam ḍ_ω] daṇḍa ṛ_ωπ_ω 57d daśa ṛ_ωπ_ωḍ_ω^{pc}] deśa ḍ_ω^{ac} 58a khecarī π_ωḍ_ω] khecarīm ṛ_ω 58c apāne mūlabandham em.] apānaṃ mūlabandhe ṛ_ωπ_ωḍ_ω 58d uḍḍīyāṇam ṛ_ωπ_ω] uḍḍīyāṇam ḍ_ω tathodare π_ωḍ_ω] tathodaram ṛ_ω marandhram. This makes good sense here because in verse 51 the self goes to the tenth door (i.e. the brahmarandhra) to dissolve into the supreme self and, in verse 60, the yogi meditates on dissolving into Śiva, who is on the thousand-petalled lotus, which is usually located at the brahmarandhra.

❖ Commentary

The reason the sun-stone seems to be an example of a yogi here is that this stone was used to create fire like a magnifying glass, when it was in contact with the sun, much like the yogi is liberated-in-life when he becomes one with Śiva (62b). The fire-producing quality of the sun-stone (more commonly known as sūryakānta or agnimaṇi, etc.) is described in Rājanighaṇṭu 13.205cd: “That is a sun-stone from which real fire is emitted upon contact with the sun rays” (yaḥ sūryāṁśusparśaniṣṭhyūtavahnir jātyaḥ so 'yaṁ jāyate sūryakāntaḥ).
